ADVANTAGES OF CITY GOVERNMENT AGAIN TOLD TO NILES BUSINESS MEN

FIRE DISTRICT HAS 1300 VOTES STATES RATHBUN

Chief of Fire Department Estimates Approximate Population of Town

According to H. B. Rathburn, chief of the Fire Department, Niles sewer and fire districts have a population of 1,300. This estimate was made in the following manner:

The sewer district contains 324 houses, counting three votes to each house, total 972.

The fire district extends and takes in 120 houses additional, counting two votes to each house, total 240.

Grand total 1212—approximately 1300.

Lee Wells, of Pleasanton, candidate for supervisor, opposing the incumbent, Ralph Richmond, was in Niles this week campaigning. Mr.

Wells conferred with a number of his suporters in this vicinity and was a caller at the Township Register office.

Property Owner Gives Permit for Mains

Since the last property owner along First St. to do so has granted a permit for the laying of gas mains, work has been progressing rapidly. Although the pipe-laying was delayed to some extent in the downtown section, the P. G. and E. crew have been extending the mains along the highway and out the Centerville road.

Former Township Resident Outlines Plan For Incorporation

No grub bursting into a butterfly ever suffered the pangs of metamorphosis more than does Niles emerging from the confining limits of a village into the broader expansion of a city—judging from the earnest consideration given the round-table on incorporation led by H. A. Postlethwaite, formerly of Washington Township, San Francisco attorney, at Tuesday's meeting of the Niles Chamber of Commerce.

Although no roll call has been made as to those favoring and those opposing the establishment of municipal government in this town, one with even a small amount of observation and a little deductive ability can clearly see in most cases where the individuals who meet each Tuesday at luncheon to discuss ways and means of bettering the community in which they live, stand upon this question.

But be it said, however, to the credit of practically all, the consideration seems to be whether it is to the best interest of the community to incorporate or not to incorporate and not merely a matter of personal opinion.

Judging from the opinions expressed by visiting speakers, nevertheless, men who have had experience with municipal affairs in other cases, the verdict from one and all is unanimous—a town cannot help but benefit by incorporation—a village will never amount to anything without municipal government—a community cannot progress without self rule—the only argument against the issue is the slight increase in taxes which is more than compensated for by the rise in property value, the influx of a better class of citizens, the more comfort and convenience for those already living here.

In the case of Niles, Mr. Postlethwaite pointed out, the increase in taxes would be very slight since there are already existing various districts, fire, sewers, etc., which collect taxes from the citizens and these same taxes would merely become a part of the city tax maintenance of government and up-keep of streets, sewers, fire department, and other departments.

The main cost arising from incorporation would come from the program of improvement adopted by the city officials but no tax could be levied or no bonds issued without a two-thirds vote of the citizens and this program of improvements would be increased or decreased entirely at the will of the people.

But, the visiting speakers continuously and consistently point out, the cost of the improvements add proportionate value to the property. A house on a paved street with sidewalks in a city with ample police and fire protection, parks, and the other advantages resulting from incorporation would certainly demand and secure a higher price than property can be sold for at present in Niles, according to the opinion of

Rose Prick or a Rattler

Ben Messa, gardener at Castlewood Country Club, thought he had pricked his finger with a rose thorn while pruning shrubbery on the club grounds this past weekend but changed his mind a few minutes later when he uncovered a big rattler coiled in the undergrowth. After chopping the snake to pieces, Messa rushed to Dr. J. Hal Cope at Pleasanton for treatment. His right hand was badly swollen but his condition is favorable.

New "Stone Bridge" Credit To Richmond

Bruce and Sons of Pleasanton have been awarded the contract for re-building Stone Bridge in Niles Canyon and work was begun last week. The new bridge will be straight, crossing the creek at an angle and will be one of the greatest improvements in road work yet accomplished through the efforts of Supervisor Ralph Richmond of Niles who is a candidate for re-election.

Since the widening of "The Narrows" through Supervisor Richmond's desire to make the roads in this part of the county equal to the best, Stone Bridge, because of its crookedness and narrowness has been one of the greatest drawbacks to the comfort, convenience and safety of travel on the Niles Canyon road.

The new bridge will be a satisfaction not only to local residents but to the thousands who seek recreation by driving through or picnicing in the canyon.

JUDGE NORRIS HOLDS COURT AT 3 O'CLOCK A. M.

Collects More Than $1100 In Fines for Varied Offenses

Judge Allen G. Norris of Centerville had a special session of court at his home Sunday morning at three o'clock and collected about $1200 in fines.

Five deputies from the sheriff,s office in Oakland selected Saturday evening to pay a little visit to this part of the county. They stopped at Hayward where they picked up Joe Maloney and Joe Marowe who plead guilty to possession of liquor and paid $200 and $50 respectively.

At Niles they called at Jack Alameda's place, near Rose's garage on First Street and picked up Jack Alameda and his employee, Floyd Smith, also two white girls from San Jose who were charged with vagrancy. Alameda was charged with possession of liquor and also with conducting a house of ill fame. He received a fine of $250 on the first count and $100 on the second. Smith was fined $50 for possession of liquor.

George Butler of Newark was also one of those called upon and confessed to possession of liquor for which he paid a fine of $250.

In Centerville, J. Maiaris paid a fine of $250 for a similar offense.

NILES MUST PAY SPRING VALLEY COMPANY $5000

Districts Are Given Five Years In Which To Settle Debt

Final decision has been made upon the obligation of Niles fire and sewer districts to pay the sum approximating $5,000 due to the Spring Valley Water company for recovery of taxes paid by the company to the community contrary to its riparian rights. This opinion has been upheld by the District Attorney and the supreme court has denied an appeal to re-open the case.

Officials of the company have agreed to give Niles five years in which to pay this debt which will be approximately $1,000 per year.

According to Chief H. B. Rathburn of the Niles Fire Department and a member of the fire district commission, the sum referred to applies to the old commission and not to the present body.

He extends a cordial invitation to all of his former customers and the general public to call and see the modern and up-to-date equipment installed in his shop.

The Peerless Restaurant which is to occupy the other side of the build- will not change location until the first of September as it wlli take several weeks more to install the new equipment to be used.

Nine Buildings and Thirty-Five Acres of Grass Burned at Sunol

Started by two boys who were experimenting with a sun glass a grass fire swept down upon Sunol Glen Tuesday afternoon and destroyed nine buildings before it could be extinguished through the combined efforts of more than 100 volunteer firemen, the Pleasanton fire department and the crew of County Fire Warden John McGlinchey who rushed to the scene of the blaze from Livermore. The damage was estimated at $15,000.

The fire reached the glen at a point just north of the church and for a time threatened to sweep through the residential section and into the summer cottages located in Kilkare Woods.

Mrs. Mary Hodges, of Oakland, lost an unoccupied home. Sparks from this caught a barn belonging to E. A. Pierre, employed by an Oakland bank. Pierre's summer home was saved but another building owned by him and used as sleeping quarters for his guests was destroyed.

M. A. Cardoza lost his home, a barn and a brooder house. The blaze then swept into an area occupied by a number of small summer homes and destroyed several of them. More than 35 acres of land was burned over before the fire was gotten under control.

The boys who started the fire beat a hasty retreat when the blaze started sweeping through the dry grass. Their tidentiy was no learned but they were thought to belong to the summer colony in the glen.

Mechanics of Incorporation Told Niles Chamber of Commerce

Thorough discussion of the details of becoming incorporated featured the Tuesday meeting of the Niles Chamber of Commerce, the following facts being stated:

The first step is to describe the boundaries of the area to be incorporated. It was suggested that one of the districts already outlined, the sewer or the fire district, be used and that the county surveyor check upon these outlines to be sure they are correct. It is not necessary to have a map.

The next undertaking is to circulate a petition which reads as follows:

Petition for Incorporation of the Honorable, the Board of Supervisors of the County of Alameda:

We, the undersigned, qualified electors of the County of Alameda, and residents within the limits of that portion of said county hereinafter described, which portion contains approximately 1300 inhabitants, as nearly as may be, and is not incorporated as a municipal corporation, hereby pray that the same may be incorporated as a municipal corporation of the sixth class, under the name and style of the City of Niles, in accordance with and pursuant of the provisions of the Act of the legislature entitled "An Act to provide for the organization, incorporation and government of municipal corporations," approved March 13th, 1883, and the amendments to date.

The proposed boundaries of the proposed municipal corporation are herein set forth and particularly described as follows, to-wit:

Name .....
Residence .....
Occupation .....
Date of Signing.....

This list of names must be submitted by three men who will make affidavits that they know that the signers are registered voters (not necessarily property owners) in the territory under consideration.

This petition is sent to the county supervisors who set a date for a hearing, this to be one of the regular meeting days of the supervisors and to be advertised at least three times in weekly paper, or for two weeks in a daily.

At this hearing all property owners have a right to express an opinion for or against the matter of incorporation and their objections are sustained or over-ruled by the supervisors.

The supervisors cannot fail to call an election on the matter but they have the power to set the limits of the boundaries.

When the question reaches the vote, all registered voters in the area described, whether property owners or not, have the right to vote and a majority, not a two-thirds, vote is required for adoption.

ALVARADO TO HAVE $500,000 CANNING PLANT

Construction Begun On Building to Operate In September

Construction of the new $500,000 cannery to be known as the Island Packing Corporation has been started at Alvarado, according to D. R. Howell, secretary. The plant is located on the Centerville-Alvarado road on property leased from August May, option to buy being held. The concern has been incorporated for $500,000 and a permit to issue stock has been granted, several local men having already invested.

It is expected that equipment will be installed in time to can tomatoes this fall. About 100 people will be employed with a weekly payroll of $2,000. The first unit of the cannery is expected to turn out 1000 cases a week. Plans are to run the plant the year round, canning all kinds of fruits and vegetables.

Officers of the corporation are H. L. Klute of San Francisco, president; Mr. Delaney of San Francisco, vice-president; D. R. Howell, station agent at Alvarado, secretary and treasurer.

A. K. Aurin of Alvarado is constructing the building, valued at $3,000. The same corporation is operating a cannery at present at Hilmar, Merced county.

It is unfortunate that the member of the International Wood Products Company has not driven his wife over to our modest little town. She would have found it clean, neat—fine sidewalks—pretty homes, beautiful gardens and best of schools, and churches. When you think of it, Niles has a hard struggle: bounded on the north by the hills, the south and west by the gully cut by ages of water. She must jump this or go northwest and run into the arms of Oakland—or be stopped by Hayward. If Sheriff Becker wants a 300 acre Prison Farm—send him away off up in the hills—We want good worthy citizens and we will get them, too.

"Sorrell and Son" to Be In Niles Sunday

Once more the Niles theater offers to the local picture-loving people a film which won a reputation for itself recently in the bay cities, Sorrell and son" to be shown Sunday and Monday evenings, starring Anna Q. Nilsson and H. B. Warner. "Sorell and Son,' is one of the most talked-of books published in the last several years and the picture has a record equally as enviable. A number of local people saw this picture in Oakland and declared it one of the best of the season.

Saturday, Hoot Gibson in "The Flyin' Cowboy" will be the feature. Next Thursday, August 9, there will be a double bill—Esther Ralston and Gary Cooper, the most popular man in "The Legion of the Condemned" and also appearing in "Wings," in "Half a Bride;" and Buz Barton in "The Little Buckaroo."

MISS ROOD INJURED IN AUTO AGCIDENT

Miss Emmy Lou Rood, aged 16, daughter of Luther Rood, state editor of the Oakland Tribune and former publisher of The Register, is in the Santa Clara Emergency hospital at San Jose suffering from severe bruises about the hips and lascerations on both wrists and limbs resulting from an automobile crash which occurred a few blocks from her home in San Jose Tuesday afternoon as she was returning from the camp meeting of the Reorganized Later Day Saints at Irvington.

According to reports, a car driven by Mrs. Grace Turner, of 30 Morris street, San Jose, came out of a side street and crashed broadside into the car driven by Mrs. Helen S. Rood. Neither Mrs. Rood nor the other daughter, Gladys, were injured.

EASE OF STEERING MARKS NEW NASH

Higher standards in traffic safety and automobile operating control have appeared on streets and highways of the country as a result of the recent introduction of the new Nash "400" series of cars, according to reports from experts and the owners who have now had ample time to test the unequalled steering qualities of the new models, being displayed at the Centerville Nash Company, dealers for Washington township.

Outstanding features being stressed by local salesmen in demonstrating the new Nash are easy steering, short turning radius, longer wheelbases, one-piece Salon fender, body rubber insulated from frame, and Nash-Special design bumpers and bumperettes. There are 16 enclosed models and four wheelbase lengths. Telephone Centerville 117 for appointment to see this latest improvement in motoring equipment.

Steering ease is one of the outstanding features of the new Nash offering, and the system is an engineering accomplishment which has centered the interest of automobile experts the country over. It has been attained by the use of a new type steering mechanism which affords the fastest and easiest manipulation ever known in driving and in parking, and has reduced the Nash turning radius by 20 per cent.

This exclusive Nash design is of general interest. Briefly it includes the following features:

At the lower end of the steering column, under the hood, is the sector or worm gear. When the steering wheel is turned, this gear also turns. Upon the easy action of this gear depends the easy action of the steering wheel. In the new Nash mechanism this gear is mounted in either roller or ball bearings.

The turning motion of the worm gear must be transformed into a transverse action to move the front wheels. This is done by means of the tooth which travels in the spiral groove of the worm. Here again is a possibility of hard steering—the friction between tooth and gear. Nash eliminates friction here by making the tooth a roller-tooth, which rotates with the gear at the same time that it travels along the worm. In the Standard Six a slightly different mechanism—the "cam and lever type"—is used. It is also designed to eliminate friction.

In still another way Nash eliminates effort. The front end of the car must rest on steering knuckles. At those points Nash uses ball bearings, transmitting the weight of the car to the wheels with a minimum of friction. And to make control of the car still easier, use of an inclined king pin brings the axis of the knuckle pin and the plane of the front wheel to intersect at approximately road surface. This reduces road shocks to a minimum and controls the car perfectly at high speeds.

The entire steering machanism is sturdily built with enlarged boaring surfaces to reduce wear. Adjustments are simple and easily accessible. A touch is sufficient to guide the car through labyrinths of traffic or straight as the crow flies over the open road.

Never before in the history of the automobile industry, according to engineers, has there been evolved so responsive, smooth and sure a system of stearing as that featured on the new "400."

Traffic Violators Being "Stepped Upon"

Judge Allen G. Norris earned his money last week! Following a busy session of court at his home at 3 o'clock in the morning, Sunday, a troop of evil-doers greeted him at Tuesday's hearing.

R. J. Moseley of 2015 Market street, Oakland, who was also a nocturnal caller at the Norris home the previous Sunday because he refused to sign the citation card for reckless driving, is a wiser but poorer driver after his $50 fine for recklessness.

Alex N. Romanoff of Oakland was fined $5 for driving on the wrong side of the road. Romanoff stated that in passing another car he ran out of gas at the psychological moment and had not enough momentum to carry him across the road, the car travelling however considerable distance down the highway before it stopped.

WOULD MOVE WESTERN PACIFIC'S STATION

Congratulations once more. "We hate to brag" but can,t resist the temptation to broadcast the fact that people outside of Niles are commending our efforts to publish the best weekly in the state. E. W. Mason, general manager of the Western Pacific railroad, called up the Register this morning and expressed his appreciation to Mr. Parks, publisher, for recent editorial comment and news stories about the Western Pacific appearing in The Register. Mr. Parks made an appointment with him for next week to discuss plans for improving station facilities at Niles, including a possible change of location in order that the town may receive more benefit from the proposed increase of Western Pacific service in this district and the railroad in turn may secure more patronage by a more convenient location.

MORE ON Advantages of City

municipal-government experts which have been heard at the Chamber of Commerce for the past few weeks.

"Incorporation is the cornerstone of home rule," said Mr. Postlethwaite. "Far more can be done by a city government than can be expected from the county supervisors.

"Road taxes due this community, unexpended, would be returned to the municipal government.

"Incorporation would have no effect upon any debts now owed by any of the districts, fire, sewers, etc.

"Taxes for the municipality could be collected by the county for a small per cent, saving the salary of a collector.

"The smaller the area and the more concentrated the population, the greater advantage of incorporation, saving expense of putting city streets to outlying sections.

"Any unsubdivided land of more than ten acres cannot be included in the boundaries without the consent of the owner.

"No portion of the state gasoline tax is due incorporated towns.

"If there is a county road in the incorporated town, the supervisors would probably continue to aid with its up-keep.

"Tax rate is limited to $1 per hundred for general purposes, this not including interest on indebtedness from issuance of bonds.

"Niles would be a city of the sixth class.

"The school district would not be affected in any respect by incorporation, nor included in the city affairs."

A Word of Appreciation By One of Our Readers

That the editorial policy of The Township Register devoted to boosting Niles is felt to be beneficial is the opinion of at least one of the paper's readers, the following word of appreciation having been received this week:

"The last issue of the Register has been received and perused with very much interest. I am sure you must feel gratified in the progress Niles is making in its Civic Improvement advances. I feel that your splendid editorials appearing in the Register during the months you have been at the helm, are responsible in a very great measure for this betterment—let the good articles continue to be printed. Cordially yours,

DR. M. E. EASTMAN,
Pleasanton.

OUTLINE OF FENTON HOUSE, CHILD WELFARE HOME

Since Washington Township is soon to have an Emergency Home for children who come under the jurisdiction of the Welfare Board of Southern Alameda county, readers of The Register will probably be interested in a brief account of Fenton House of Oakland, given by Miss Jennings, resident worker, who spoke to the group gathered in Hayward last week for the purpose of organizing the Children's Department.

Fenton House was established in March, 1925, and opened in the following May, with capacity for sixteen children. Welfare workers met many problems in the children being brought to the home. Many of them had no idea of cleanliness, orderliness, the necessity for regular meals, regular bedtime hours, etc., or of the rights of other people.

These children, however, were not classed as delinquent. They came as wards of the Juvenile Court because of the inability of the parents to care for them financially, improper guardianship, and for other reasons.

There are three resident workers who observe the children, trying to judge their re-actions toward their associates, their general deportment, etc., in order that they may be placed in the kind of foster home where they will fit best. Some of them have to have special diets. Sometimes when children are released from other institutions, such as Del Valle, they are brought to Fenton House for a period of readjustment before returning home or being placed in a permanent foster home.

If the children are ill or have symptoms of illness when brought to Fenton House they are sent to Highland Hospital for a few days till all danger of possible contagion is over.

Residents of Fenton House assist with the work. Each child has some definite duty to be performed daily. They have recreation provided for them and go to Sunday school Sundays. When it was found that the children could not always be depended upon to go straight to church and return when the services were over, the plan of having chaperones was devised and now five dollars each is paid two adults who take the Catholic and Protestant children to their respective Sunday schools.

They occasionally go on hikes and five dollars a month is provided to buy movie tickets. Birthdays in the home are observed and festivities planned for Christmas. Visiting day comes twice a week and sometimes the children are allowed to go out with their parents.

Ages of the children in Fenton House range from 4 to 16 years.

Berkeley and Alameda both have welfare homes. Mrs. R. W. McCord, executive secretary of the Southern Alameda County Welfare Board, is in favor of having the proposed new home located somewhere in Washington Township as this would be the central point for the community to be served, comprising the four townships—Washington, Eden, Pleasanton and Murray.

Houses have been considered in both Niles and Centerville.

THE JEFFERSONS WIN IN ELEVENTH INNING

By K. Leash

In the hardest fought game of the season, the Jefferson club of San Francisco nosed the Kraft boys out in the eleventh inning for a nine to seven win.

With both teams playing real baseball the score ran 1 to1, 2 to 2, and so on, until about the seventh inning, when the score jumped to 7 to 3 in Jeffersons' favor. Jeffersons held the lead till the end of the ninth, where the Kraft boys stepped in and tied the score with a series of exciting hits, Clarence Pine, pinch-hitting for Keyes, did his stuff with a nice single, scoring a run. The tenth inning netted no runs for either side; the eleventh proved disastrous for the Kraft boys who failed to score while Jefferson brought in 2 runs.

Felix and Brazil pitched for Kraft, Keyes catcher, Dutra, first base, Blacow, second, Perry, third, Roderick, short, King Lemos, Amyx and Joe Lemos, fielders, Pine pinch-hitter.

Kraft vs. Newark, at Newark next Sunday 2:30 p. m. Newark has a newly-organized team, made up mostly of home fellows; should be a good game, and of interest to the township.

"Decidedly Better"

Week-End Outfits on Ensemble Plan

Costume, Frock to Shoes, Carries Combination Idea to New Heights.

Week-end visits out of town have become so definitely a part of modern life that special outfits are now designed for the purpose. Motoring, too, has made "light" traveling essential, and left neither space nor sentiment for unnecessary frills and furbelows, so that modistes have had to solve many new problems for their clientele.

For the week-end, says a fashion writer in the New York Times, it is generally safe to select dress suitable for sports travel, or morning wear, and for afternoon and evening, formal or informal, as the case may be. Everything is arranged in ensemble, beginning with the suit in which one is to arrive. This may be a one-piece frock with a coat of the same material, or a three-piece, consisting of skirt and blouse, with a coat made to match the skirt, and to serve perhaps as a topcoat with other frocks.

Ensembles of this description are being designed for service on parties that are likely to include much out-of-doors activity. Some of these come in dressy styles and materials, for visits to a near-by fashionable resort or country house. The strictly tailored models this season are trim and exact, but yet youthful and feminine.

The sports ensemble, now more often called the morning suit, is presented in many different materials, though often in similar models. Crepe, taffeta, pussy willow, moire, satin, are all shown in much the same treatments. Suits of lightweight wool, too, are tremendously popular at the moment. Kasha, tweed, homespun and fancy weaves are used for the two-piece and three-piece suits, particularly for the ensemble in which a blouse of soft fabric is worn. This is usually made to match the coat lining, keeping harmony of color in the ensemble.

Preference for Woolens.

One of the surprises of the Paris summer collection of sports clothes is the preference for woolens in mixtures, plain tweeds and the various Rodier fabrics. These include plain and fancy weaves, suede broadcloth and wool crepe and are made invariably in a softened variant of the tailored ensemble. Some charming models are shown in a one-piece frock model of wool made to give the effect of a separate overblouse and skirt, and designed to be worn with a fur scarf.

In a dress of this sort it is important that the color scheme be carried out in the hat, shoes, gloves, even, as far as possible, in the purse. An ensemble in beige kasha is made with the gown cut on simple diagonal lines, the plain skirt being made to dip slightly at one side. The short collarless jacket of the same goods is lined with brown crepe, which is used to pipe the edges of both the coat and bodice. The hat, shoes and purse that accompany this suit are all of brown suede in the same shade as that of the lining.

Combinations of different fabrics are used to add variety and interest to the sports ensembles, and the present manner of using plain with figured goods is sometimes most effective. In a conspicuously chic costume created by an American artist fine cashmeres in beige and brown are used to give the effect of stripes in the plaited skirt and overblouse. The short jacket of beige is lined with brown and has collar and cuffs of brown fur.

This is one of numberless models in which is seen the vogue of suits either of brown alone or of brown in combination with beige, tan and the parchment shades. One smart suit model of this kind consists of a skirt of mixed or plain wool, and a jacket of velvet, which is now made in a sheer weave for summer that is warranted to be noncrushable. This is shown in plain textures and in ribbed surfaces to resemble the old-fashioned corduroy. A suit made of flat crepe with a velvet coat is even more docorative, and is shown in some charming color combinations. Scarlet, green and blue with white and with black and white are all fashionable, and yellow all in one shade or in two shades is charming.

Yellow Worn at Races.

One of the prettiest sports ensembles seen this year was worn at one of the early races, a frock of yellow crepe with a plaited skirt and tailored overblouse, and a three-quarter-length coat of white kasha lined with crepe to match the frock. A hat of white suede felt banded with yellow grosgrain ribbon, white shoes and an envelope purse of white suede and yellow kid completed the costume.

White is very smart this summer, especially in the off-shades. Blue-white was introduced in the spring in lovely evening gowns and is being repeated in crepe sports frocks, which are shown also in ivory gray, pink and other shades that are just "off." These in ensembles of one color are particularly good in the more dressy sort of sports clothes. Several sports ensembles illustrate the possibilities of this idea. One consists of a frock of ivory moire with coat of kasha, another has a dress made of blue-white flat crepe and an unlined coat of moire in the same shade, and still another has taffeta and voile combined in a three-piece costume.

An ensemble that will delightfully meet the demand for correct dress on many daytime occasions is being made in the new prints on fabrics of different weaves. One of the conspicuous successes of the year in this idea is the repetition of dye and design on two materials which are combined in one ensemble. A charming model is made of washable taffeta in a lovely pattern of cherry blossoms printed on a background of pastel blue, of which the coat and skirt are made. The bodice, an exact replica in pattern and colors, is made of voile.

Another ensemble, in two shades of green with white and gray, is made of the same materials, and with it goes a large hat of sheer neapolitan trimmed with gray velvet ribbon, and shoes and stockings and velvet purse of gray. In this type of dress one may wear the most vivid or the gentlest colors and appear as modish in one as in the other. Bright green, in the natural and the artificial tones, is exceedingly smart, and is shown in new suits of heavy crepe, jersey in fancy weaves and in pique and linen, with hat, shoes, belt, bag and even umbrella to match.

For Various Occasions.

The sports ensemble in its variants answers for so many different occasions that two or more of these will meet the requirements for daytime affairs for which formerly one would have had several dresses, and responds to the popular demand for an all-day costume.

In distinctively afternoon dress the new printed materials are lovely. Crepe, pussy willow, voile and chiffon are being treated in the decorative modernistic manner, picturing landscapes and skylines or representing the signs of the zodiac or various geometric compositions.

Unless the sports ensemble with the long coat has its coat unlined and made of some such cool material as the nattier blue pongee, which Philippe et Gaston employ in a certain fetching model, the coat is apt to find itself discarded in hot weather. Its lovely coloring alone, a light blue in this particular model, with a deep border of paler blue applied all about the coat under a narrow line of Chinese embroidery in white, should save this coat from such a fate, however. The nattier blue skirt of the frock was flat plaited and the jumper was bordered deeply about the waist in white embroidery depicting a startled covey of Chinese birds.

No sports outfit would be considered complete this season without a separate, thin, tailored coat of a white basket weave or serge, made without a lining and trimmed in self bands or stitching. Patou likes a Norfolk yoke on his coats of this type.

A FEW UNUSUAL DAINTIES

For a finish to a hearty company dinner nothing will be more tasty than

Coupe Moquin.—Make a sirup by boiling a quart of water with two cupfuls of sugar for 20 minutes. Add the grated rind of two oranges and cool, then add two cupfuls of orange juice and one-fourth cupful of lemon juice. Strain and freeze to a mush, then add two tablespoonfuls of creme de menthe and continue freezing. Serve in deep sherbet glasses, garnish with bar le duc currants.

Walnut Deceits.—To one cream cheese add one-fourth of a cupful of finely minced olives that have been stoned; add a few grains of paprika and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Shape in balls, roll in finely minced walnut meats, flatten each ball and press into it one-half of a walnut meat on each side. Serve as a cheese with the salad course. Arrange on a doily-covered plate and chill before serving.

Richmond Corn Cakes.—To three-fourths of a cupful of canned corn add one-half cupful of milk, one-half tablespoonful of sugar and two well-beaten eggs. Mix and sift seven-eighths of a cupful of flour, one tablespoonful of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Combine mixtures, drop by tablespoonfuls in buttered muffin rings and bake in a moderate oven. Serve with roast beef.

When serving a boiled fish, try this sauce:

Huntington Sauce.—Melt three and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour and stir until well blended, then pour on gradually, while stirring constantly, one cupful of chicken stock. Bring to the boiling point and add one-half cupful of cream, one-fourth cupful of blanched almonds, shredded, one teaspoonful of beef extract, eight stoned olives cut into quarters, one-half tablespoonful of lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a few grains of cayenne.

French Crullers.—Prepare the paste as usual, adding to the flour a tablespoonful of powdered sugar, then to the eggs add the grated rind of half a lemon. Make the crullers by forcing the paste through a pastry tube in the form of rings. Place them on a piece of greased paper just the size of the frying kettle. Let them stand for a few minutes to become crusted over, then invert into the kettle of hot fat. They will leave the paper. Dip in chocolate icing when cool.

For cream puffs drop the mixture and round it to make a round cake, then brush with beaten egg or egg and milk mixed to give the glossy surface, and bake.

Seasonable Foods.

The favorite meat foods for the summer, are chicken and lamb. The reason lamb is so expensive in most localities is that only the chops and leg of the lamb are desired. Stews of the neck or shoulder served with peas and carrots, make the finest kind of eating. The breast baked with stuffing is also a most desirable dish. No part of the lamb should be refused, as it is all tasty and good when well seasoned.

Lamb Shoulder With Vegetables.—Cut up the meat in serving-sized pieces and brown in a little fat. Place in a baking dish with a cupful or more of diced carrots, an onion or two, adding a little boiling water, season well and bake until the meat is nearly tender enough to serve, then add a few small new potatoes which have been parboiled and peeled; cook until all the vegetables are tender. Serve from the dish or casserole.

An ordinary lamb stew, using one of the cheaper cuts, makes a most delicious meal, adding a pint of green peas long enough to cook them, then thicken the gravy with a little flour and butter cooked together; add seasoning to taste. Serve the meat with the peas and gravy around it. The one thing which seems to be lacking in the average cook is a knowledge of the value of seasoning. The hit-or-miss method of oversalting or undersalting no tasting of foods while cooking to see if the food needs a bit of this or that, is a grave fault which never can be made too much of.

Half of the people who dislike certain foods have acquired that annoying practice, because those foods have never been cooked, seasoned or served in an attractive way. There is always an excuse for favoring those who are made ill by eating certain foods, a personal idiosyncrasy that should be respected: but the average "finic," made so by early training, should have no quarter. Training in these things should begin with the parents.

MISS DOVE

"It was kind of you, just now," said Miss Pigeon to Miss Dove, "to offer me a bath in your eaves and save me the trouble of flying home."

"You'll accept then?" asked Miss Dove.

"Thankfully," said Miss Pigeon.

"Well, I think I'll take a little shower myself," said Miss Dove.

So they bathed and were nice and clean, and they felt very fresh and cool and happy.

"Now we'll have a rest," said Miss Pigeon, "eh? A little rest and a little chat."

"Yes, indeed," said Miss Dove, "and you must tell me why we are as fine as people.

"You said that when you first came to visit me today."

"Ah, to be sure," said Miss Pigeon

"Well," she continued, after a little pause, for both Miss Pigeon and Miss Dove had dozed off, and each had taken a tiny nap, "well," she went on, "I heard the other day that there was a special place where they could obtain houses and homes of all sorts and sizes for doves and pigeons.

"Some of these they called 'portable' which meant that they could be moved about.

"But the great and glorious thing to me about it was that it was so superior.

"Now we are to have houses brought from little shops and big shops—just as people go to such offices and rent houses.

"It just seems exactly like being a person and seeing about a summer home—ah—and they show fine homes for us, too."

"Tell me about them," said Miss Dove.

"They're very beautiful and of a nice generous size for the most part, and they're painted in green and white!"

"Beautiful!" said Miss Dove. "So cooling are those colors. Green is very good for the optic nerve."

"What in the world is the optic nerve?" asked Miss Pigeon.

"The optic nerve," said Miss Dove, "is the nerve of the eyes. Green would be good for eyes—keeps them from getting tired.

"I wanted to show you that I knew a good word, too."

And after they had talked some more about the possible new summer homes their owners would get for them, they went to sleep and dreamed of green and white houses!

Miss Dove made her friends feel right at home!

RADIO

Sets Work Miracle With Small Amount of Power

The sensitiveness of the ordinary receiving set of today is a modern miracle of radio energy.

Its efficiency compared with that of the broadcasting transmitter affords probably the most striking contrast in radio engineering, Commissioner Caldwell, in charge of technical advances for the radio board, says.

An eight hundred millionth of a watt, a power so faint as to be beyond the grasp of the mind, is sufficient energy to operate an ordinary receiving set, Mr. Caldwell has figured. He says the power taken by an electric iron would operate 500,000,000,000 such sets.

"The ordinary $100 set will receive fair programs with a signal intensity of 50 microvolts per meter. Assuming an antenna height of five meters, giving 250 microvolts available potential, and assuming an antenna resistance of 50 ohms, Ohm's law shows that the primary energy received out of the ether by the set would be one eight hundred millionth of one watt.

"This tiny power is, however, a perfect fabric of all the complex frequencies, tones and shades of the orchestra or quartette it carries, and when amplified produces the rich and compelling sound pictures we know so well. And even this amplified energy in the loud speaker is small as power goes, registering less than one watt."

On the other hand, the average broadcast transmitter requires a guard area surrounding it at least 25,000 times as large as its dependable service area and probably less than 1-100th of 1 per cent of its radiated energy is received usefully by all the radio sets in its range, Mr. Caldwell says.

He declares it is doubtful if even a 50,000-watt station actually delivers a total of one watt to its audience. The other 49,999 watts are wasted in space, metal structures and earth deposits.

Give Cure for Static From Smoke Consumer

Many cases of radio interference are caused by electrical precipitators which are used to prevent smoke and noxious fumes or material from leaving a chimney, radio engineers at the bureau of standards say.

The precipitator operates by establishing a highly charged electric field inside the chimney of such a nature and direction that particles going up the chimney are charged and driven against the wall, where they stick. Precipitators cause interference, the engineers explain, because the high voltage then used is obtained from a rectifier which produces sparks and generates radio-frequency current as well as the direct current which the precipitators need.

If the precipitator is so designed and arranged that the distance between the rectifier is only a few feet, or if the entire apparatus, including all leads, is housed in a metal building there is usually no trouble, but if the rectifier is separated from the chimney the wire which joins forms an antenna which will radiate and cause interference for 20 miles or more.

Interference from these eliminators can be eliminated, the engineers declare, by placing a grounded wire screen entirely around these wires and thoroughly grounding the wire screen and the rectifier. If screening of the various parts is impracticable damping resistances can be inserted at various points in the wire line which will reduce the power radiated.

About "Dead Spots" in Some Short Wave Sets

The broadcast listener who is using his short wave "converter" for the first time frequently finds there are one or more points on the dial at which the receiver cannot be made to oscillate. This phenomenon, which is familiar to all amateurs, results from the fact that the receiver is tuned to the resonant-frequency of the antenna or to a harmonic of this frequency. When the two are resonant considerable power is absorbed by the antenna, which makes it difficult to produce oscillations in the receiver.

This trouble is never encountered at broadcast frequencies because a very small "aperiodic" primary is used and the natural frequency of the antenna circuit is very high. The trouble may be remedied either by loosening the antenna coupling or by connecting a small series capacity in the antenna, which will shift the resonant frequency to some part of the band which is not in use.

Farmers Buy Receivers for Fun, Not Learning

The main reason farmers buy radio sets is to obtain entertainment, and not chiefly for educational purposes, it was disclosed by a questionnaire recently sent to farmers by the Colorado Agricultural college.

The questionnaire was distributed in order to determine the best kind of program for the college to present during its weekly broadcast from Station KOA.

It was revealed that programs of pure entertainment held the greatest interest, with mixed programs of entertainment and information next in preference. Purely informative programs ranked third.

Vast Quantities of Water Under Earth

The quantity of water underground, beneath the crust of the earth's surface is nearly one-third the total volume of the oceanic waters, according to estimates of Dr. Chester A. Reeds, of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, who has just completed investigations of buried rivers and caves. The earth's ground water extends to great depths, perhaps six miles, and has been accumulating for countless ages. This great mass of water percolates slowly through the porous and jointed rocks to form great systems of underground drainage, creating such beauty spots as Mammoth cave in Kentucky and the Endless caverns in Virginia. In the limestone regions, where so many of these unfamiliar streams are found, the formations of huge stalactites, stalagmites, columns, and stony curtains in the cavernous depths remind one of the artistic handiwork of ancient artisans on the Renaissance palaces.

The republic of Andorra has just paid its annual tribute of 1,400 francs (about $56) to its two "co-princes," the president of France and the bishop of Urgel, Spain. For 649 years Andorra has paid tribute and enjoyed undisturbed sovereignty in its mountain valley. It became a republic in 1806. Andorra claims about 5,200 inhabitants.

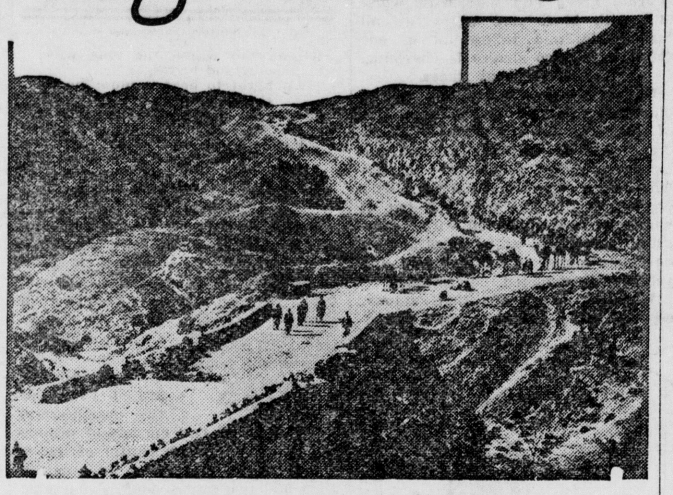
Afghanistan



A Caravan in the Khyber Pass.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

AFGHANISTAN, one of the most secluded of the larger countries of Asia, has come more into world consciousness in recent months than ever before because of the visit of its king and queen to Europe. Until this occasion these monarchs had never been outside their native land, and their trip through Europe was made up of a series of amazing adventures. A journey by an American through Afghanistan would be little less amazing.

Authorities differ as to the exact origin of the Afghans, but the old theory that they are of Semitic extraction is now discredited; it seems more probable that they are merely a mixtue of Turanian tribes, developed here through many centuries of raids, migrations, and tribal changes.

In physical appearance the Afghan is a sort of Turco-Iranian type, the minor tribal divisions in the east of the country showing also a mixture of Indian blood. (The name "Afghan," or "Agwan," is of comparatively recent usage.)

The culture of the country is largely Persian; but an eager desire for learning is innate in every Afghan, and of late years not only Indian, but also British, culture and customs have begun to influence the better classes of the people.

The Afghans call their language "Pushtoo." For official matters, however, the Persian idiom is used and understood over most of the country. The Turkish and Mongolian tribes in western and central Afghanistan speak their own tongues. The ruling Amir knows Persian, some Pushtoo and Turkish.

Foreign newspapers, most of them coming from India, are most carefully read at the amir's court, where they are translated by hired students trained in India. The amir delights in illustrated newspapers and is himself a fairly good photographer.

Jealous of Harem.

The Afghan is notoriously jealous of his harem, and few, indeed, are the men of the outside world who have ever looked on the face of an Afghan woman of the towns. With the desert women, wives and daughters of the nomads, it is different; the Koran permits them to go unveiled. The breaking of this custom by the queen on her recent journey was deplored by many Moslems.

The Afghan works no more than is absolutely necessary to make his living. The upper classes consider it their privilege to exploit the poor, and the burden of taxation is very heavy.

As for entertainment, the people, especially the wealthy, are fond of games and of sports. Hunting, horse-racing, wrestling matches, and gymnastic games are popular. Recently, football and tennis have been adopted by the upper-class youngsters of Kabul. Ram fights, cock-fighting, and even fights between male quail, are favorite diversions, and throughout all Afghanistan dancing is indulged in and the public declamation of ballads is warmly applauded.

Every better-class Afghan owns a piano, imported from Bombay, which he plays with one finger, keeping his foot on the loud pedal constantly. When an outsider plays for them, using ten fingers at a time, they are overcome with amazement and admiration. A tale is told of one man at Kabul who sawed the legs off his grand piano, so that he might play it while sitting on the floor, Afghan fashion.

Costumes vary in different parts of the country. In the East the garments approach the Indian style, and of late years a few natives have even appeared in European dress. A decade ago the amir introduced European uniforms and suits for himself and his whole staff of officials.

European hats and uniforms of all styles, imported in quantities from India, are often worn in the most singular combinations.

The typical national dress of the Afghan consists of a long-tailed calico shirt, white pants, leather shoes or boots, and a tanned sheep-skin coat elaborately embroidered with yellow silk; this coat is sometimes replaced by a long toga of red cloth.

Three kinds of headgear are customary. Some wear a low, many-colored cap; others a blue or white turban, which is frequently gold-embroidered with a flap hanging down behind to protect the neck from the sun. In some provinces men wear the kullah, a colored cap that looks like a Turkish fez, which widens toward the top.

In the house and at work women wear long calico shirts, wide, colored pants like the men, and head-cloths above gold-embroidered caps. Their street dress consists of long, wide pants and a blue or black overdress, the costume being completed by a loose garment that covers the head and upper part of the body, just allowing the eyes to look through a latticed insert like a strip of mosquito bar. The feet are stuck in large red slippers.

Meager Bill of Fare.

The bill of fare of the Afghan is very simple and reflects the poverty of the country. Bread, fruits, vegetables, tea, sweet milk, sour milk, and cheese are the main foods. Rice, mutton, fowl, and sweets cooked in various ways are found on the tables of the well-to-do. The average Afghan has no particular fondness for wine or spirits.

Tobacco raised in the land is of inferior quality; the better sorts are imported from Russia, India and Egypt. The Amir Habibullah Khan always had a good private stock of Havana cigars. Both young and old people take snuff.

Tea, sweetened and unsweetened, is the favorite drink and is consumed in prodigious quantities. When you go to see an Afghan, you can hardly escape before swallowing four or five cupfuls of tea; it is, therefore, no trifling gastronomic feat to pay several visits in one afternoon, the more so if the polite host (with a view of honoring the western guests) has the tea served in big Russian glasses.

The right hand is always used in eating and drinking, the left hand being considered unclean.

Dogs, though numerous and useful, are looked upon as unclean, and pious people never touch them.

Animals that go badly lame on the march or camels that get snowbound in the mountain passes are abandoned to their fate. Afghans never kill such animals, as we might do, to put them out of their misery. They believe that the lives of all living things are in the hands of Allah, and that man sins if he presumes to interfere with the supreme will. Afghans will not even kill fleas or other vermin; they merely pick them off and throw them away!

The trade of Afghanistan is moved entirely by caravans and is largely in the hands of Hindus and Tadjiks. The chief route lies through the famous Khyber pass, the great gateway from India, which has been fortified by the British government.

This pass is open every week, on Tuesdays and Fridays, except in very hot weather, when it is available to trade only on Fridays. A most rigid scrutiny is exercised by the amir's agents on all who come and go. As soon as caravans from India enter the country, their Indian leaders are turned back and heavily-armed Afghan guides take their places.

Caravans Well Regulated.

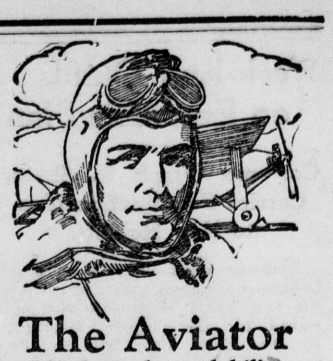
Some of these Afghan caravans, organized with military precision, number thousands of camels and a proportionate number of guides and camel-drivers. In the morning the Khyber pass is open for caravans coming into Afghanistan, and in the afternoon for those routed in the opposite direction. The pass is absolutely closed between sun-down and sun-up.

Along all the caravan trails in the country are good, solid caravansaries, built of stone and clay, situated about a day's march from each other.

The most important caravan roads leading out of Afghanistan, are: In the west, from Herat to Meshed; in the north, from Maimene and Aktcha to Kerki; in the east, from Kabul to Peshawar, and in the south from Kandahar to Quetta.

Important cities like Kabul, Kandahar, Herat, Maimene, and Mazar-i-Sharif are connected by fairly good caravan roads, which, over various long stretches, can be used by motor cars. The amir has good motor roads, built in and around Kabul to link up his palaces.

Owing to the aggressive pursuit and harsh punishment meted out by the amir's troops, the once famous robbers of the Afghan hills have almost disappeared, so that caravans, even in the desert districts, can now travel in safety; but in some provinces near the borders constant quarrels and raids are going on among hostile tribes.



The Aviator

Absolute dependability is aviation's first law and that is why I use dependable Champion Spark Plugs.

Champion is the better spark plug because it has an exclusive sillimanite insulator specially treated to withstand the much higher temperatures of the modern high-compression engine. Also a new patented solid copper gasket-seal that remains absolutely gas-tight under high compression. Special analysis electrodes which assure a fixed spark-gap under all driving conditions.

Woman Howe Admires

I am specially admiring another woman. She married a half worthless sort of fellow, and not much was expected of her, as she came from a shiftless family and shiftless neighborhood. But she is surprising every one. Her new kin, at first suspicious, are acclaiming her. Her half worthless husband not only loves her, but she is making a man of him. She is the reigning sensation in the little town where she lives, she is so adorable, sensible, womanly and worthy. Her name is Lizzy. I have heard so much about her that I should rather see Lizzy than Ethel Barrymore.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Kissing is like salt. Too much spoils any situation.

BREARTE JOSEPH NOT GUILTY IN TONY ROSE CASE

Brearte Joseph, of Niles, charged with reckless driving, after a jury trial before Judge Allen G. Norris Tuesday, was found not guilty. The complaint was filed by Traffic Officer L. A. Eike following the accident in which Tony Rose was injured several weeks ago.

Famous Pianist Plays For KGO Friday Night

"Victimized" into playing for radio!

Thus did Sigismond Stojowski, the world-famous Polish pianist and composer, explain his assent to a radio performance to Howard I. Milholland, studio manager of KGO, Oakland, who is responsible for the appearance of Mr. Stojowski over the General Electric station on the Western Artist Series concert, Friday night, August 3, from 10 to 11 o'clock.

In the past Mr. Stojowski has successfully warded off all efforts to persuade him to play for radio, but on coming out West his resistance weakened before urgent demands of music lovers, and his performance on Friday night will mark his debut before the microphone. Two years ago when Mr. Stojowski visited the KGO studio he listened to his pupils play over the microphone, and from their performances he carefully studied the requirements for proper rendition of the piano over radio. From the knowledge gained on this previous visit, this artist has prepared his radio program.

Mr. Stojowski is an internationally-famous figure in the musical world of today, an artist who has been heard extensively in recital, in ensemble, and as soloist with the leading orchestras in Europe and America.

All Children Invited To Librry Story Hour

Popularity of the children's story hour at the Niles Free Public Library continues, seventeen youngsters being present last Monday. According to Mrs. Roland Bendel who has charge, they listen eagerly but demand fairy tales each week. Every child between the ages of four and twelve years is welcome, the story hour being free of charge. It is especially desired that children not ordinarily in the habit of using the library will attend.

Mrs. Bendel will be glad to suggest lists of books for those children who wish to take volumes home with them. Many of them, she states, want to know where the story she tells comes from and when they are told, secure the book to take with them.

Most of the children attending are in the second, third or fourth grades at school.

SOMETHING FISHY ABOUT THIS STORY OF ERNEST MARTIN

Ernest Martin has been in Westwood, Calif., for the past three weeks, building a gravel plant for his firm. He is combining business with pleasure and from all reports the fishing in that part of the country is exceptionally good. "Mr. Martin is a lover of out-door sports and is anything but slow with the rod and reel," a friend of his told us recently. "Last Sunday morning he spent a few hours on Lake Alminor and had the thrill of his life hooking an eight and a half pound trout that took him twelve minutes to land. His only disappointment was that he did not have a camera with him to take a picture of it to show his fellow sportsmen on his return home. But what good would it do to have a good fish story if one had to prove it?"

LOW RATES MAKE ELECTRIC COOKING ECONOMICAL

1542 electric ranges just installed in our customers' homes

The Electric Range gives beauty, cleanliness and perfect baking to women who love modern methods.

That is the reason why 1542 of our customers installed Electric Ranges in their homes from May 1st to June 23rd.

The Electric Range has white porcelain enamel that makes kitchens attractive. It bakes perfectly. And it does it automatically. The oven heats up to 400 degrees in 9 to 11 minutes—as fast as one can mix biscuits. The open coil cooking elements are now made smaller to fit your pans. Heat that was formerly wasted goes to work. Food cooks faster—less electricity is used.

While you're downtown, stop in and see the new Electric Ranges.

From all reports the exhibits are to be of unusual attractiveness, recreational features also deserving special mention.

A WEEKLY CHAT WITH LOVERS OF BOOKS

"Some Interesting Pages In Current Magazines"

By ISABEL M. COIT

In these, the Indian summer months of the intellect, most of us are not looking for mental hurdles like Gibb's "The Age of Reason" or soul sub-ways like "Mother India" and Ibanez's "The Mob." If we have read the latter ones and the impulse to press an aching tooth persists, the fall magazine will prove a splendid anaesthesia to take for its removal.

Lindy says that the choice of a landing place is the most important thing in flying. So, if we are up in the air about our vacation reading, the magazine "Contests" provide excellent beacon stations for landing and spending a pleasurable hour.

Some of our visiting literati have not hesitated to hold to our face a mirror reflecting an image we failed to recognize as our own. They pictured us as an infant nation—sometimes as an imbelic one at that. In the July Mentor, Raymond Fuller shows us a concave mirror held to our eyes by a Frenchman, Andre Siegfried, in a most encouraging article, "America Comes of Age."

In the same issue, Ida Tarbell discusses the omnipresent issue "Temperance by Force or Temperance by Choice." Good Housekeeping's "Tiger! Tiger!" presents a living argument through the medium of truth, stranger and stronger than fiction or theory.

We small-town residents who have been living happily in blissful ignorance of any special technique for our existence therein may find a smile or two in "How to Live in a Small Town." (August American).

Since one good article deserves another, "Al Smith and the Young Men" (Atlantic Monthly, July) may be antidoted—or vice-versa, according to our view point—by "Working with Hoover," in the August Worlds Work. And whether we wave our flag from the so-called crazy-quilt being synonomous with splendidly composite, or from the platform whose piers reach deep into our own bordering ocean—"May the best man win in one of the great campaigns of American History."

If we are of the company that thinks there is some thing, if not much, amiss with the younger generation, Mary Austin's "A Child Must have some Religion" (August Pictorial) or "Saving the Sunday School" in the August Forum may suggest a theoretical solution. If we are striving to determine whether our child is a genius, talented or just merely intelligent, Mary Austin may enlighten us through the August Forum. If we are bored with companionate marrige let us substitute education for the latter word and read No. VIII of the Education Series (August Forum).

Speaking of Education, Frederick Keppel in the August Century--"Strange Things are Happening," to the schools all over the world—tells us whither they are headed but as to either ultimate destination quotes his grandmother's answer when questioned about the reality of hell, "Wait and see."

Hugh Kennedy concludes that "The New Plutocrat" (August Century) will invade all the hitherto forbidden preserves of the mighty male until she proves that "Paul's Wife is as good a man as Paul."

'Jazz is not Music," Sigmund Spaeth (August Forum), is unique in that it actually tells us, not only what jazz isn't, but what jazz really is. "Music at Midnight" (August Harpers) is not "the stars listening to the music of the waves," or anything more or less sentimental, but a vividly dramatic reminiscence of the best music played by the best musicians of that period.

Elimination is successful only through substitution; "The Political Equivalent of War" (August Harpers) is an international government, stronger and wiser than can yet be anticipated—when the ballot instead of the bullet may change the government or social order.

In view of much discussion on recent court decisions two articles in August Atlantic Monthly are interesting. "The Irritating Efficiency of English Criminal Law" in which efficiency is attributed to the fact that in England more power is vested in the judge than in the jury; and "Are American Juries at Fault" in which Victor House holds that the jury is not to blame and that the remedy lies in "putting teeth into the law."

The Movie-Tone has brought us the perfect Dublin English of George Bernard Shaw which is probably the only way we shall ever hear it since he protests that he will never come to America. (Literary Digest, July 28).

A word for fiction; "The Father," (August, Woman's Home Companion)—a story taken from the Lincoln family records; "This Family, (August Century) amusing to any one in the throes of summer separation from his or her family; and "Mary,," (August Harper's) a lovely minature framed in Katherine Mansfield's perfect style, seem to be outstanding.

GOV. YOUNG WILL ADDRESS LEGION STATE MEETING

Governor Young will top the list of speakers for the coming American Legion state convention at Stockton, August 12-15, according to an announcement from the committee in charge of the big conclave. In addition to the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor Fitts, a former state commander of the organization, Senator Samuel M. Shortridge and other distinguished persons are to be down on the program for addresses during the convention.

With the American Legion membership in California now over the 41,000 mark, the largest in the history of the World War Veterans' organization, State Commander Dodson expects a banner attendance at the tenth annual state convention. Three delegates will attend from Washingon Township, as announced previously:

One of the biggest events of the convention will be the parade in which the majority of the three hundred Posts of the Legion will participate. Many of the posts will enter floats in the parade in competition for the trophies offered for the best displays.

A hot fight for the state commandership which is due to go to a Legionnaire from one of the posts north of the Tehachapi has enlivened the interest in the coming convention.

The Forty and Eight Society, the playground of the Legion and the American Legion Auxiliary, the women's unit, will hold their meetings during the convention of the parent order.
